District Autoists Say Maryland License Regulations Are Oppressive.

District motorists are indignant at the condition of automobile traffic from the District into Maryland under the present Maryland automobile license laws and are clamoring for a change in the provided that a motorist coming into the State from the District of Columbia must buy a license, but owners from other States may come and go at their will.

Not only is this true, say the owners of cars in the District, but the license rate is being boosted yearly, and has recently received a jog from the Legislature in the form of an amendment to the original law which will bring at least $5,000 more from the local drivers than least was brought to last year. This matter was brought to the attention of the Chamber of Com-merce some days ago, and a special committee was named to investigate and Adjourn Subject to Chairman's Call After Hearing Albert J. Beveridge.

INDIANIAN TRIAS OF HIS PRIEMDGRIP FOR PERKIES

Investigation Expected to Result in Legal Ban on Big Campaign Donations.

SOME CAMPAIGN FIGURES.

1904 - Roosevelt, Republican. $2,288,528.57; Parker, Democrat, $890,567.55.

1908 - Taft, Republican, $1,-655,518; Bryan, Democrat, $620,-

1912 (pre-convention) - Taft, $265,000: Roosevelt, $168,500 (exclusive of large individual contributions in Ohio and Pennsylvania); La Follette, $64,000; Wilson, $208,000; Harmon, $150,000; Underwood, $52,000; Clark, $50,-000.

After listening to the testimony of for er Senator Albert J. Beveridge, of Indiana, relative to the return of $57,500, which was offered him during the campaign of 1904 in Indiana, the Clapp inestigating committee yesterday adjourned subject to call of the chairman. Thi means that the committee will not resume its sessions until after election, and it may mean that there will be no more to campaign contribu the national and Congressional campaign

Beveridge was the last witness before he Senate committee investigating po-tical campaign funds yesterday. His estimony was more or less dramatic. testimony was more or less dramatic.

A delineation by Beveridge of his Damon and Pythias friendship with George W. Perkins, who tried to contribute $10,000 to Beveridge's 1904 campaign, was a feature of the hearing.

"So you and Perkins were close friends?" Benafor Paynter observed.

"Yes, but—" Beveridge expostulated.

"Oh, I don't mean that as any reflection upon you," Paynter explained.

Perkins His Best Friend.

"Perkins and I have been the closet of friends since early manhood," said Beveridge. "He is the godfather of my son, as Gifford Pinchot is of my daughter.
Both are exceedingly dear to me. They are my most devoted friends in the whole world. When the Senate walked cut on me and I was supposed to be 'broken' and humiliated, and I was supposed to be ended, Perkins stood by me.
He is the oldest friend I have since David Graham Phillips was assassin-

Beveridge also told how he got another $25,000 in 1904 from his cousin, E. L. McLean, and returned it as he had Perkins' $30,000. Mr. Beveridge disclosed incidentally that he had received $1,000 for his gubernatorial campaign this year from the same cousin, but declined it because his cousin was supporting Asked if Perkins acknowledged the re turn of the $30,000, Beveridge replied that Perkins wired: "An honest man is the noblest work of God."

Financed Own Campaign. Beveridge said he always financed his later $5,664.90 was appropriated to repay wn campaigns and never received a himcent for speaking tours for the Progres-sives this year. He also said he never accepted a railroad pass or telegraph "frank" when in the Senate and caused passage of the "anti-pass" law. The Progressive leaders disclaimed knowledge of any other political contributions Franciscan The Indiana Bull Moose showed a disposition to complain of the committee for looking into his campaign fund, and not investigating other Senators elected that year and since. "I am here to answer any question.

but may I be permitted to ask why I have been singled out for this honor?" inquired the Senator.

The committee heard one other witness.

witness testified that the National Com-mittee sent $125,000 into Indiana that year to aid the Republicans. Company, where Gray was bookkeeper, and the last of forging a check of $50 on his brother, Thomas R. Gray.

Expect Remedial Recommendations When the committee next meets, it is believed, it will be to consider its report and to make recommendations as to the best means of putting a stop, through legislation, to the extravagant use of money in national campaigns. While the hearings have been extremely partisan in their nature, that the rep-resentatives of the different factions en-gaged in the present fight used every possible weapon within their knowledge and reach, in an effort to grind out good campaign material for use against their opponents, it is believed the report will deal little with the partisan nature of the investigation, and will confine itself prin-cipally to a statement of facts and to a recommendation that Congress set a defi-nite limit on the amount which an indi-vidual may contribute to any one candi-

This may take the form of a bill limit-ing individual contributions to $10,000 and prohibiting banks from pouring any funds into campaign war chests of the political parties. The present law prohioits corporations from making contri-butions. There undoubtedly will be an attempt, possibly by Chairman Clapp, to have the recommendation take the form of a Federal appropriation for campaigns and prohibiting the raising of other funds by the various candidates and their friends. It is considered improba-ble, however, that the majority report of the committee, if there should be more than one report, will declare in favor of this means of remedying the conditions aimed at

Effect on Public Mind.

The only benefit which can be hoped for as a result of the hearings just losed must be found in the deep impres sion made on the country by the vast personal and corporation contributions which have been brought to light. While the committee was unable to establish any connection between these large contributions and favors conferred by the beneficiaries—that is, the successful canbeneficiaries—that is, the successful candidates—the people at large are not expected to disbelieve that some such connection, perhaps harmless in itself, existed. Because of this belief it is expected that the country will be ripe and the voters ready to demand some remedial legislation to make popular elections as independent as possible of money. One of the heaviest contributors to any fund was William Film, of Pittsburg, who spent $144,000 to elect Roose-

"The Tall people in "this contest in our county spent $6,00, and I think their exacellitues of mostry and ours were along absolutely legal lines," he told the ostumittee, "and the only criticism that can be passed on the expenditure of mostry in our county, which was enormous is that it was wasteful. One side does it because the other side does it sentirely legal. I think it ought to be stopped." Some Big Contributors.

The hearings probably have brought out the names and amounts of virtually all the heavy contributors to campaign funds since 1904, not including the present national campaign. Of those whose contributions have been read into the record, Thomas F. Ryan is far and away the heaviest individual contributor to any one campaign. Mr. Ryan gave 2450,000 to the Parker campaign of 1904. Next to Mr. Ryan comes Charles P. Taft, brother of the President, who gave 2430,000 to the preconvention campaign of

After Mr. Taft, comes Dan R. Hanna, who gave $177,000 for the dual purpose of electing Roosevelt delegates in Ohio and obtaining control of the State machinery there last spring. Then, skipping the several big corporations and financiers who contributed between $150,000 and $100,000 each to Roosevelt's 1906 campaign, William Flinn, of Pittsburg, is next in line, with his $144,000 contribution, also for a dual purpose. Then comes George W. Perkins and Prank A. Munsey, Roosevelt "angels," who contributed $123,000 and $118,000, respectively, to the Progressive preconvenspectively, to the Progressive preconven-tion campaign. Cleveland H. Dodge, who gave $51,300 to the Wilson preconrention campaign, is beaten only by Thomas F. Ryan, in the Democratic party, as far as the late preconvention fight is concerned. Mr. Ryan's generosity knew two favorites. He gave 270,000 to the Harmon fund, and about $33,000 to Thirty thousand of the pamphlets were distributed to the clarks, both men and women, when they emerged from the different government buildings at 4:30 c'clock. A significant thing about the pamphlet is that it directs attention to the disaster that might come upon gov-ernment employes in the event of the election of Prof. Wilson, but it does not refer to the third-term candidate in any

"If elected, would Prof. Wilson be equal to the occasion as was President Taft, and resist the onslaught of his party associates in Congress upon the party associates in Congress upon the merit, system which they undoubtedly would renew if again placed in power?"
asked the pamphlet. "Will not Democratic leaders in Congress tell him there as they told him at Seagirt, where they visited him in a body, that he must keep 'hands off' of Cengress; that they will tolerate no 'interference:' that the constitutional power of veto must not be exercised because it is the 'power of a potentate,' and that he must do the bidding of Congress, whether right or wrong, or he will gress, whether right or wrong, or he will 'come to grief?' The pamphlet says that "President Taft showed splendid moral courage, friendship for government employes, and fidelity of the principles of civil service when he vetoed the so-called seven-year tenure plan of the Democrata. President Taft at the same time fulfilled the promise in Republican party platforms to up-hold and maintain the civil service."

Lewis was being removed from the jail to the asylum by George C. Gunn, a guard at the jall. At Fourteenth and K Streets Southwest, Lewis attacked Gunn and a lively fight ensued. Gunn subdued the negro long enough to send call for help to the Fifth Precinct Sta-Two policemen were sent to aid Gunn and Lewis was carried to the hospital without further trouble. Gunn narrowly escaped being seriously injured but he got a "hammerlock" on the prisoner and in this way was able to hold him.

Progressive Club Meets.

The Progressive Club, in Potomac District of Montgomery County, Md., which has been active in support of Col. Roosewelt, held a large meeting in the Gibson Grove A. M. E. Zion Church, about two miles north of Cabin John Bridge, on Friday night at which Rev. W. H. Crump presided. James W. Poe, of this city, a Taft Republican, addressed the Italian craftsmen, when asked what his ambition was, replied:

"I should like those who examine the cupolas of St. Mark's five hundred years hence, to say:

"'This was the work of a conscientious artist."

Pride of worthy achievement-that's the secret of all true craftsmanship. And that's the spirit which underlies the making of Craftsman Furniture. We build not merely for today but for the years to come.

We want to feel that those who follow us can say with pride-nay, more, with affection-

"This is a Craftsman Chair!"
